C. B. B ROTHERS

Poetry.

Peradventure.

JULIA C. R. DORR IN THE ALDINE.

I am thinking to-night of the little child
That lay on my breast three Summer days,
Then swiftly, silently dropped from sight,
While my soul cried out in sore amaze.

It is fifteen years ago to-night;
Somewhere, I know, he has lived them through,
Perhaps with never a thought or dream
Of the mother-heart he never knew!

Is he yet but a babe? or has he grown
To be like his brothers, fair and tall,
With a clear bright eye, and a springing step,
And a voice that rings like a bugle call?

I loved him. The rose in his waxen hand
Was wet with the dew of my falling tears;
I have kept the thought of my baby's grave
Through all the length of these changeful years.

Yet the love I gave him was not like that
I give to-day to my other boys,
Who have grown beside me, and turned to me
In all their griefs and in all their joys.

Do you think he knows it? I wonder much
If the dead are passionless, cold and dumb;
If into the calm of the deathless years
No thrill of a human love may come;

Perhaps sometimes from the upper air
He has seen me walk with his brothers three;
Or felt in the tender twilight hour
The breath of the kisses they gave to me;

Over his birthright, lost so soon,
Perhaps he has signed as the swift years flew;
O child of my heart! you shall find somewhere
The love that on earth you never knew!

Miscellaneous.

An Indoor Tragedy.

Well nigh half a century ago a newly-married couple settled in one of the western counties of Pennsylvania. They had what their neighbors deemed a fair capital with which to begin life—a well-stocked though small farm, sound health, good common sense, and a more than average amount of shrewd intelligence and culture. Under all this was a sincere trust in God and a jealous, sensitive love for each other, neither of which their neighbors knew much about. American backwoods farmers take a pride in covering their emotions under a hide as tough as that of their own beeves. They had three or four children and night after night, over the kitchen fire, the problem they set themselves to answer was, what is the best thing we can do with them, and for them; the question asked daily with such a wrenching of heart in myriads of homes, and answered so differently. The fear of God seemed to Jacob and his wife the best herritage to give them; the next best, plenty of money. To give them the first, they began by hedging the children's lives with a system of rules, borrowed half from the Jewish laws, half from the theory of their sect. Strict morality, the keeping of Sunday as a periodical day of penitence and wretchedness, the learning under penalty of dark closets and thrashings of the chief duty of man, therein was their religion. Life they were shown as a strait and hard path through a dark valley with the terrors of Sinai behind, and the traps and pitfalls of a flaming hell on either side. Even Jacobs's wife, Mary, holding her darlings to her breast, than which no mother's ever ached or throbbed with more tenderness had no other sermon to preach to them. It never occured to her or her husband that it was into just such fields of grain as those about them, under just such towering cedars, that Jesus led his disciples and taught them, by the sunshine and the rain, the tender mercies of God. The world grew green around them, faded again and wrapped itself in snow, year after year; the river sang its mysterious song to the woods at their very door; and overhead the stars that had declared to the patriarchs of the old world the infinite secrets of Jehovah blazoned them forth still, unregarded. Day unto day uttered speech, and night unto night showed forth knowledge of Him, but both farmer and wife were deaf and blind. God was to be approached only through a doggeree catechism, and fields and river were worth only so much fish and wheat per year.

The children's salvation being thus provided for, the next thing to be insured was money. Husband and wife worked and stinted as only a Scotch-Irish farmers's family can work or stint. All produce that was salable went to the market; the children were reared on the refuse, the skim-milk, poorest bacon, and watery potatoes. Their clothes were coarse and patched, their feet bare and chilblained. The house grew barer year by year, the father's back more bent, his face harder, but the balance in bank increased dollar by dollar. As for the plump, bonny Mary, she had long ago joined that sisterhood of lean, yellow-skinned, toothless women who, with dirty calico dresses and wisps of hair twisted up behind, are sometimes found in farm-houses like ghastly megrims, or daylight specters of a wasted life. When churning and scrubbing were done she would sit up until near morning washing and darning their clothes, that they might look more "genteel" than she, dragging her aching body to look at them when they slept, praying for them with a fierce longing to have power to be God himself—to be able to protect and care for them. The boys had certain strong animal propensities, and physical tendencies which required skill and knowledge to guide or restrain. One had a morbid imagination; another a tendency to alchoholic poisoning, against which his diet and training from infancy should have defended him. The girls, left to themselves, were filling their brains with sickly false fancies of life and their work in it. But what time had Mary to read or acquire in any way the power to comprehend or help her children? There was the scrubbing and churning to be done, the money to be saved. Boys and girls were sent to colleges and seminaries; every advantage that education could give them was theirs; the only mistake Jacob and his wife made in this respect was not to educate themselves as well. The children went forward; they sat down and grubbed.

What is the end of it all? The daughters grew up dyspeptic and sickly for the lack of early proper food; they married and died before middle age, brilliant, hard women, and neither of them in any sense religious. One son went into politics, was successful, is now a member of Congress, one of the most influential of his party. Jacob and his mother read of his life in Washington, his wife's receptions, his popularity. But long ago he was a stranger to them. is years since he crossed the old threshold. What is there in common qetween him and the ignorant, boorish farmer and his wife? A few weeks ago, the last of the sons came home to die; the one of all the children who had real power of intellect; the only one who was not ashamed to talk of "mother" fondly to the last. He died in her arms, a drunken, worthless sot. The thin, haggard woman closed his eyes without a tear. "I have lost all my children," she said. "I must have made a mistake somewhere in the beginning: God knows."

Is no other mother making this mistake?

What my Cook Said.

There's nobody mum, that's so put upon as a cook, and cookin is a bizziness that nobody makes 'lowances for. Most o' bizzinesses can be done at one time's well's 'nother. My brother now is a carpenter, and he don't have to git a door done by quarter past six, or else the door he spiled. And there's Biddy, the chambermaid, if she don't finish sweeping a room when she ought to, the carpet won't go back to wool, or shrival up to a crisp. And if she makes a bed up all wrong from top to toe, she don't have to throw the sheets away—nothin's hurt, and she just goes to work and make it over again. But if I makes a bad mistake, like that in a piece of meat, why in course it's spiled intirely, and don't the best o' folks make mistakes sometimes, mum? If I begins a roast just a trifle too soon it's spiled, and if begins it just a trifle too late it's spiled all the same, or else folks is in a pet because I makes 'em wait a bit for it. I knows in a gin'ral way by the looks of a piece of meat just how long 'twill take aroast. but things don't allurs work as a body calc'lates—sometimes or less, and sometimes the fire gits contrairy. Most o' my work, and roastin' in partiklar—the thing most folks gits crossest about—can't be done and put away till it's wanted, like dish-washing and ironing and sewing. It's to be done just to a turn, and just to a minit. A roast must go right straight from the fire to the table, as you know, mum, yourself, and sometimes folks is a little longer than common over the soup and fish, and how am I to know, mum? And then, if the meat is a little overdone, it's "that miserable cook can't even roast a piece of beef right!" And if it's taken from the fire and kept hot, why that's just as bad, and it's "that miserable cook; she has contrived to git the flavor out of the meat!" And if they are ready too soon, and the meat is too rare, it's "that miserable cook!" again. Seems to me that ladies and gintlemen as is ladies and gintlemen might think a bit how hard it is on the cook and have a bit o' patience, and instead o' saying, "that miserable cook!" might be a takin' pleasent among themselves, and wait a few minutes if meat isn't ready to the minit, for you know, mum, it's an old sayin', "It is better to wait for the roast than the roast wait for us."—Hearth and Home.

Why Jenks Never Married.

"I think a woman is a tremenduous being," said Jenks. "When she's right, she's the rightest thing that floats. When she's wrong, she's the biggest nuisance that plows the sea, even if she's little and don't draw two feet of water. Perhaps it isn't just the thing to say to a boy like you, but you'll never speak of it, if I should tell you a little something?"

"Oh, never!" I assured him.

"Well, I s'pose I might have been a married man," and Jenks avoiding my eyes by pretending to discover a horse-shoe in the road.

"You don't say so!" I exclaimed in undisguised astonishment, for it had never occurred to me that such a man as Jenks could marry.

"Yes, I waited on a girl once."

"Was she beautiful?" I inquired.

"Well, I should say fair to middling," responded Jenks, pursing his lips as if determined to render a candid judgment, "Fair to middling, barring a few freckles."

"But you didn't leave her for the freckles?" I said.

"No, I dinn't leave her for the freckles. She was a good girl, and I waited on her. It don't seem possible now that I ever ra'aly waited on a girl, but I did."

"And why didn't you marry her?" I inquired warmly.

"It wasn't her fault," said Jenks. "She was a good girl."

"Then why didn't you marry her?" I insisted.

"Well, there was another fellow got to hanging round, and—you know how such things go. I was busy, and—didn't tend up very well, I s'pose—and—she got tired waiting for me—or something—and the other fellow married her, but I've never blamed her. She's been sorry enough, I guess."

Jenks gave a sigh of mingled regret and pity, and the the subject was dropped.—From "Authur Bonnicastle"—Dr. Holland's new story, in Scribner's for January.

The Pig and the Man.

We want to show you two people, Dr. Dio Lewis says: One has four legs. They call him a pig. We want to see him eat Now, when the fellow gets enough he'll stop. There! he won't eat another mouthful. You can't coax him to do it.

Let us look at another. They call this one a man. Watch him. He is at breakfast. He looks this way and that way. He can't see anything he wants. Now he tries a mouthful of strong coffee: that wont fetch it. He tries a spoonful of catsup; that a failure. Now he tries a mixture of mustard and vinegar. At length things begin to work a little, and he is finally able to cram a lot of griddle-cakes and sausage, and sausage and griddle-cakes, and two or three cups of strong coffee, into his stomach. Which do you vote for? We vote for the gentleman with four legs.

"Doctor, what do you think is the matter with my little boy?" "Why, it's only a corrustified exegis antispasmodically emanating from the germ of the animal refrigerator, producing a prolific source of irritability in the pericransal epsdermis of srritability in the pericranial epidermis of the mental profundity." "Ah! that's what I told Betsy, but she 'lowed it was worrums."

The Pennsylvania tavern keepers threaten to raise the price of lodgings and feed for man and beast if their licenses for selling liquor are taken from them. This is certainly their strongest argument, and it is a wonder they have not bethought themselves of it before.

Slang and Syntax.

The number of well educated people who habitually speak correct English is vary small. A great many who consider themselves good grammarians constantly indulge in expressions that Lindley Murray, wouldn't know how to parse, and that our modern grammarians would utterly condem. We can forgive those who from imperfect culture always will say "it aint," and "I'll learn you" for "I'll teach you," but when graduates from our common schools persist in such inaccuracies, it is time protests should be entered, and they be called to account for corrupting the King's English.

It is not only with grammatical errors however, that we have now to deal. Hurtful as these are they are less injurious to the language of social life than the vast class of expressions that are covered by the word slang. Bad grammar is not nearly so contagious as piquant yet faulty expression. It is certainly better to violate a rule of grammar or language than to break one of the ten commandments, to express the intensity of one's emotions in slang rather than in profanity. Such is the infermity of human nature that the best of us feel at times compelled to use vigorous and unusual phraseology. It is well to remember that even in such cases we shall accomplish more in the way of forcible diction by coolly selecting our expressions, by polishing our invective, by refining our epithets, than we can possibly do by indulging in Billingsgate or profanity or slang. A witty scientist once silenced a London fish woman who was pouring out at him a flood of vile talk, by hurling at her, in emphatic tones, the language of paleontology, thus: "You ichthyorous, you pterodactyl, I'll send you to the paleozoe regions; I'll feed you on cephalopods, and saurains shall consume your parietals." In blank silence the woman stared at her enemy, and could not utter a word in reply. We have all noted and admired the grace and elegance with which educated foreigners speak our language. The secret of this lies in their careful pronunciatiou, their accurate observance of grammatical rules, and their total ignorance of slang. They talk, as we say like a book. The conscientious and habitual avoidance on our part of all impure English will make our language chaste and elegant and expessive, as is theirs. This may be done without the slightest affectation.

It is frequently the case that children in our schools every day use slang and bad grammar, and are not corrected. Teachers refrain from doing their duty for fear of hurting the feelings of their parents, from whom the children have learned these errors. This is all wrong. Every teacher should feel in duty bound to sow the seed of correction by all waters, and, so far as she can, educate parents, through their children, into the use of faultless English. In the South the temptation to borrow original and racy idioms from the class formerly held in servitude is almost irresistable, and in private circles, where the standard of syntax is not the very highest, the derivation of words used and the manner of putting them together present many puzzling and amusing phrases. As a rule, Southern men and boys use better language than their wives and sisters; because less tempted by constant hearing of African idioms to depart from the purity of their native tongue.

Every section has its peculiarities of pronunciations, its idioms, provincialisms and in proportion as one's language is faultless are all these features removed, and it becomes to tell the Northern from the Southerner, the New-Englander from the Californian, the American from the Englishman.

Cicero says that the men of his time noted for their elegance of language leraned of their mothers to speak their native tongue with precision, and never knew how to talk but with propriety. Of Cæser it was said he was incapable of talking as a private man.

To the cultured ear no music is so delightful as the constant flow of elegant thought in exquisit diction. Only by a loving and discriminating study of words, by a careful exclusion of questionable phrases, by an artistic choice of language can this rare and enviable accomplishment be made one's own.

From the lips of beauty how discordantly fall the clashings of false syntax and provincial slang. What a sad contrast we often see between the sportless and shining silken robes that drape the figure of loveliness, and the bed ragged, muddy, ragged phrase that clothes the vacuity of thought. How freely does snowy linen, shining kip, and immaculate broadcloth covering an ignorant soul supply the place of thought embodied in forcible and Addisonian phrase. When the two are combined, as in William Pinckney, and Charles Dickens, all the world yields to their fascinations, and admires the setting not less than the jewel.

We do not wish to talk blank verse in the bosom of our families, but the rhythm of well-ballanced sentences will not make loved voices less musical; the abscens of every clumsy and incorrect phrase will not detract from the plasure of our fireside; felicitous epithets will not be spots on our feasts of charity or diminish the relish with which after the day's labor we seek the society that makes home home.

A Horrid "Dream Come True."

A strange story comes from China. A native schoolboy at Shanghai told his schoolmaster that he had dreamed his stepmother murdered him, and placed his remains in a jar under the floor of her house. The schoolmaster reassured his pupil at the moment, but subsequently missing him for a few days from school remembered his dream, and rushed to the house of his stepmother to enquire for the boy. Receiving an unsatisfactory answer, and full of suspicion of foul play, the man tore up the floor and found the corps of his pupil cut up and stowed away in a jar precisely as the poor boy had described. The case has been authenticated before the Chinese courts, and the murderess was executed, after being carried to the six gates of the city to receive the execrations of the people.

There is no doubt that England will have to import more wheat this year than ever before, and the prospect for next year's crop, so far as can be judged by the fall cowing; is very poor.

The Greatest Criminal Trial on Record.

In the whole history of juisprudence there has never, probably, been anything equal to the gigantic trial which was commenced at Moscow, in Russia, on the 21st of November, and in which were arraigned 500 prisoners, upward of 200 of whom were convicted and sentenced to cruel penalties: Among the accused were persons of every station in life—gray haired men and youths, men and women, among the latter some highly accomplished and prepossessing in appearance. All the prisoners were charged with one of the gravest offenses in the criminal code of Russia—that of counterfitting; That code says: "The person that counterfits the coin or currency of the Imperial Government, shall suffer death."

Notwithstanding this rigorous provision, Russia has been flooded for many years past with well executed counterfeits of the Government Treasury notes. The prompt execution of several who were caught in passing the spurious currency did not check the evil, and for the last three years it became so great that the Minister of Finances was almost in dispair. Offers of the largest rewards did not lead to the detection of the guilty parties. Changes in the appearance of the treasury notes did not do much good either, for so vast is the extent of the Rusian Empire that it takes the Imperial Government six months to communicate its decrees to the remotest parts of the country.

At length in last July, a curious accident gave the Government the long-looked-for clew, which led to the discovery of criminals of both sex, banded together for the purpose of circulating the spurious currency, and which extended from the bleak and frozen shores of the White sea to the Volga and the Black sea. In the course of the two following months, 3,000 men and women were arrested, but, after a preliminary examination, 2,500 of them were discharged, and about 500 were held for trial. Among the latter were six Frenchmen, of St. Petersburg, who had been caught printing the counterfit notes, and a comparatively large number of women. The prisoners were all conveyed to Moscow, where they were confined in the vast vault underneathe the Kremine Palace. Criminal law in Russia is barbarious at best, and the male prisoners were herded together like so many hogs. They received the coarsest of fare, and straw was their only couch. The women were treated but little better.

On the 20th, of October the trial was opened in the large hall of the Kremlin, which holds nearly 5,000 persons. The proceedings were protracted for a month, and the prosecution succeeded in establishing the guilt of over one third of the accused. Two hundred and three of them were found guilty, among them about fifty women. Sentence of death was passed upon six French printers, and the other convicted parties were condemned to hard labor in gold mines of the Ural mountains for life or ten years. The doomed men and women burst into piercing shrieks and howls; and well might they, for in the case of the former, the sentence included barbarious flogging and branding on the forehead with red hot iron; while the women some of whom were of refined descent, shuddered at the idea of having to do the most menial work for life or ten years at the station houses, where the keepers of the male prisoners reside. In their despair some of the unfortunates threw themselves upon the ground, and their piercing cries mingled with the clanking of their chains, produced a truly horrible effect. The excitement and frenzy of the condemned grew from minute to minute more intense and the judges, in order to restore quietude, had to call in the soldiers, who, with their kantscubs, beat the prisoners right and left, and then dragged them back to the vaults of the Kremlin.

On Marriage—To Young Men.

The true girl has to be sought for. She does not parade herself as show goods.—She is not fashionable. Generally, she is not rich. But, oh! what a heart she has when you find her! so large, and pure, and womanly. If you gain her love, your two thousand are millions. She'll not ask you for a carriage or a first class house. She'll wear simple dresses, and turn them when necessary, with no vulgar magnificat to frown upon her economy. She'll keep everything neat and nice in your sky parlor, and give you such a welcome when you come home that you'

A SAFE RULE.

The responsibilities of political or private strange emergencies. Party organizations, also, engender singular friendships. In a word, the changes of politics and politicians occur so suddenly and so frequently, that the uninitiated find it almost impossible to discover who are the representatives of a principle, or those who are really attached to a creed because it has the power of doing some good. Hence it is not at all strange that the great mass of the people are more and more becoming unable to judge who are really sincere in their attachment to principle, and they are, therefore, slow in their estimation of men, and often prone to accept the profession of ventureres as genuine devotion to sound political doctrines.

Any man, who has carefully observed the movements of parties for the past few years both in this State and in the nation, cannot have failed to discover the motives which have prompted a certain class of men to political action. Is it principle? Is it honest conviction? Is it an earnest desire to promote the public good? Let the crucial test of Scripture—"judge the tree by its fruits"—be applied and it will be found that many, many of the changes among the would-be leaders have been wrought to satisfy personal ambition and to use the machinery of party to accomplish selfish ends. It is always a safe rule to keep a watchful eye upon new converts. Give them all confidence when they give evidence that they are entitled to it.

RESOLUTIONS CONCERNING THE INDIANS.

The following Preamble and Resolutions were introduced into the House of the North Carolina Legislature by J. R. DAVENPORT, of Perquimans. They were ratified on the 1st inst.

To our Representatives and Senators in Congress concerning the Indians.

Whereas, Our National Government has at various times entered into treaty stipulations with certain Indian Tribes, residents of the Indian Territory; and believing that national honor requires the faithful observance of national obligations; Therefore,

Resolved, 1st. By the General Assembly of North Carolina, that it is the imperative duty of the Government to adhere to its reiterated pledge to the present occupants of the Indian Territory, of perpetual and undisturbed possession of their lands.

Resolved, 2d. That our Senators and Representatives in the Congress of the United States, be respectfully requested to use their influence against any disregard of the plighted faith and honor of the Government towards the aboriginals of our country.

Resolved, 3d. That we approve of the policy inaugurated by the President in the management of the Indians.

Resolved, 4th. That the presiding officers of the two Houses of this Legislature, cause copies of the foregoing resolutions to be transmitted to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress, to the President, Vice-President and Secretary of the Interior of the United States.

Resolved, 5th. That this resolution be inforce from and after its ratification.

RECENTLY ELECTED UNITED STATES SENATORS.

During the past month a number of United States Senators have been elected. We briefly enumerate them:

In Pennsylvania Hon. SIMON CAMERON Republican, was re-elected.

In Arkansas Hon. S. W. DORSEY, Republican, succeeds Senator RICE.

In Wisconsin Hon. TIMOTHY O. HOWE, Republican was re-elected.

In Illinois Hon. RICHARD J. OGLESBY, Republican, succeeds Mr. TRUMBULL.

In New York Hon. ROSCOE CONKLING, Republican, is re-elected.

In Nebraska Hon. JOHN P. JONES, Republican, succeeds Senator NYE.

In Florida Hon. S. B. CONOVER, Republican, has been elected.

In Kentucky Hon, W. B. MACKIN, and in Georgia Gen. GORDON, both Democrats.

LET IT ADJOURN.

The ostrich with its head in the sand has not hitherto been esteemed remarkably wise or prudent, and the pilot who shuts his eyes and runs his ship on a rock has been supposed to evince rashness or incompetency rather than forethought or coolness. And yet, compared with the partisan action of the majority of our State Legislature, the ostrich is wise and the rash pilot brim full of sagacity. The Democrats seem to have resolved to ignore public opinion. They will find it is easy to resolve this, but it will not be so easy to give wide or lasting effect to the resolution. Any man can shut himself up in a cellar and resolve that he ignores sunshine; but the sun will continue to shine nevertheless. We repeat, what we hinted in our last, that the legislature ought to adjourn. Let it do so at once.

THE DISMAL SWAMP CANAL.

We know positively that but for the existence of the Dismal Swamp Canal, the Government of the United States would never have founded a Navy Yard at Gosport. Without the lumber, and timber, and tar and turpentine of North Carolina, which then found its way through the Dismal Swamp Canal, the keel of a man-of-war ship would never have been laid in these waters. Even now, with all the improvements of steam navigation and the many sources of supply within the reach of the Government it would have but little motive of fostering a Navy Yard at this point if the Dismal Swamp Canal should be suddenly closed. When Norfolk was the commercial market of this country, that important staple came through the Canal, and but for the cereals, pine lumber and lumber, and staves, and shingles, and herrings, of the "Old North State," but the Dismal Swamp Canal has departed on our wharves in the days that are gone—Norfolk would still be a village, instead of a thriving city. The measure for the improvement of the Dismal Swamp Canal, now before Congress must of necessity be successful. The Government cannot afford to pass that work by. Its interests, direct and indirect are identical with those of the Company, and of our people. The claims of the measure are entirely different from those of the other general schemes before Congress. To ought not to be hampered or jeopardized by being associated with any of them. Our people, without distinction of party, with singular unanimity, are hoping for, and expecting the relief asked of Congress, in favor of this home improvement, and their wishes will be gratified.—The bill is in the hands of our own able representative, whose influence at the Capital is acknowledged by all intelligent and unprejudiced people. He is a working man and will do his duty in this matter, as he has done, and will continue to do in everything else with an eye single to the interests of his constituents.

We copy the above from the Norfolk Day Book. It is an enterprize—a grand public improvement by which Elizabeth City and Eastern Carolina were deeply interested. And we hope and believe that it not only has the full sympathy but will command the earnest co-operation of our able Representative in Congress, Hon. C. L. COBB. He too is a working man and is always ready to do all in his power to promote the best interests of his constituents.

The Dismal Swamp Canal is a necessity to the Government as well as to us. The measure for its improvement is a doubly important one. There should be no unnecessary delay in the matter. Proper and persistent efforts now cannot fail to be crowned with success.

We endorse the suggestions made by several of our cotemporaries in reference to the importance of an Editorial Association in this State for mutual benefit and protection. Such organizations exist in other States and the result in much good to the profession. It not only brings about a personal acquaintance of the editorial fraternity but institutes a uniform system of conducting business. Let us have an organization.

The clergy seem to have become the terror of the great West. The dreadful storms of forty hours duration which swept over Minnesota, as they now tell it, and the loss of life was fearful. Now is the time for the men of the South" to press the attractions of North Carolina, on the attention of the moving masses, and give them a cordial welcome to the old North State.

A New South, growing, vigorous, hopeful and earnest, is springing up taking the place of the Old. That was swept away by the war. There is a great field opening here for men of spirit, and energy and progress. The spirit of Yesterday is gone, and gone forever. The spirit of To-day and of the Future reigns. Let the wise men of the South realize the fact and, cutting loose from Rip Van Winkleism and frowning down all mournful criticisms on the past, resolve to meet the day in which they live.

The great New York criminal WM. M. TWEED may have another trial—the jury did not agree. The result is a farce and tends to shake all confidence in jury trials. The evidence of the man's guilt was conclusive, and the charge of the Judge was explicitly against the prisoner, but the jury failed to bring him in guilty. His friends boasted that he would not be convicted.

The "noble young gentleman from Philadelphia" who engineered the railroad schemes of Col. New Books, Periodicals, &c.

The February "Old and New," the second number of the new volume, is bright and entertaining. It has a curious estimate of Jefferson's character by his opponent, the keen old Puritan politician John Quincy Adams. The discussion of Utilitarianism, by Mr. Marineau, is a felicitous instance of entertaining metaphysics; for he makes even laughable the evident contradictions of Mill and Benthan. Mr. Theodore Bacon has a stout avowal of hostility to the monopolizing tendency of the railroads, to be followed, we suppose, by some explanation of what is to be done about it. There is also a short and clear statement of the French Spoliation Claim question, that anybody can understand. Mr. Hale's story of "Ups and Downs" lets the lovers up, not down, in this number. There is a lively musical and fancy sketch, innocent and tender, "Allegro" the conclusion of Mrs. Hough's strong and passionate story of "Pythonia" and a queer account of the mode of managing lawsuits in Rome, by the lady-defendant herself. The "Exam" begins with some characteristic reminiscences of Er. Putnam the publisher, Dr. Lieber the scholar, and other recently deceased celebrities; and the boo-reviews, musical notices, &c., are, as usual, instructive and useful.

EVERY SATURDAY. This popular Weekly is peculiary attractive now, with a translation of an interesting story, "Dimitri Roudine," by Ivan Turgenieff, the famous Russian novelist. It is quite above the average of serial stories, and a specially bright feature of EVERY SATURDAY. The other contents of this eclectic are always fresh and reliable. The editor Mr. T. B. Aldritch, shows excellent judgment in his selections and compliments the popular taste by the high quality and large variety of the stories, essays, sketches, and poems which he furnishes the readers of EVERY SATURDAY. Intelligent families can hardly have a more welcome and profitable visitor than this weekly.

CORRESPONDENCE

Our Washington Letter.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6. 1873.

The weather is exceedingly mild and the snow is melting rapidly. The streets are in a filthy condition.

Senator Pomeroy has many social as well as political friends in Washington. It is well known, doubtless, to all your readers that Mr. Pomeroy has been active as a member of the church as an advocate of female suffrage, and the prohibitory liquor law. Only last session, noticing a certain Senator enjoying himself with some friends (among them were some ladies) in drinking wine in the Capitol, he at once went to Vice President Colfax and informed him of the fact and suggested that such conduct was contrary to the rule of the Senate, upon Mr. Colfax called upon said Senator, who was imbibing, calling him to order and gave him a severe reprimand. The Daily Chronicle continues Mr. Pomeroy's friend, and argues that it is quite possible that he may, after all, be found innocent of the charge.

It is rumored that an effort will be made as soon as the Pacific Railroad Committee report to send a communication to the Senate, censuring Senator Pomeroy for his connection with the Credit Mobiler with a view to influence the body to expel him. Thus far there seems no disposition on the part of Mr. Patterson to further defend himself in the matter.

The Board of Public Works are still in an insolvent condition and the Chronicle is criticising severely its conduct in the management of affairs. Only a few months since, the Hon. A. B. Shepherd, Vice President of the Board, boasted that there was not a penny in the District that did not indorse the Board and its management, and when a poor real estate owner who had already had his property under a heavy mortagage called upon him and remonstrated against the immediate payment of exorbitant taxes resulting from extravigance of the Board, replied that if you are not able to hold your property your should sell it to some one who can.

Secretary Boutwell has been interviewed by several Senators in respect to the striking from the legislative appropriation bill the discretionary appropriation of some $20,000 for additional compensation to the clerks in his department. It has long been the custom to give this money to the Secretary to use in the way above indicated. When it came up in the Senate about a week since it was strongly opposed by several Senators, among them was Senator Windom, who suggested that it was the duty of the Senate to insist that all appropriations and disbursements should be specified; that the practice of giving to the heads of a department such discretionary powers was setting bad precedent, and while his confidence in the honesty of the present Secretary was unshaken, he felt it his duty to appease it. The Secretary has been before the house Committee and insisted that the loss of this appropriation would increase the liability of losing his best clerks.

The Bureau of Education is receiving, daily, school book publications, specimens of school apparatus and furniture from the publishers and manufacturers who have brought the country to be forwarded to the Vienna Exposition. With the exception of the expressage to Washington, which is paid by the sender of this material, the Government assumes the remainder of the expenses in importing to Vienna and displaying it. The government will transport the material of all kinds in its vessels, the first of which sails the month of March. Gen. Eaton has been besieged with applications from parties desiring to be appointed commissioners to superintend our education display at Vienna, but no one has been appointed and it is unnerstood that the appointing power is in the hands of Gen. Van Buren, the U. S. Commissioner. The report of the Bureau of Education for 71 has been entirely distributed, so that the few who still desire to obtain the report should apply to their members of Congress.

The vestibule of the North wing of the Capitol has presented a novel spectacle since the placing of the competive models for the Farragut statue, one exhibition yesterday, and a continuous stream of spectators have poured in ever since.

The models have been adjusted in line on a long bench, covered with greyish cloth which gives it a respectable appearance, and they remain as they were placed by the hands of the competing artists, few of them occupy seperate stools, and tower a little above the others but in no instance is the view of one obstructed by another.

The competers are eleven in number, and the number by models including the life size bust of the Admeral submitted by Mr. G. Turini of New York, in addition to his statutte are sixteen, some of the competors having submitted two models, one in action, and the other in repose. Of these Drischler and Ezeikel of Berin who have each deposited two statuttes.

The names of the remaining competitors are Randolph Rodgers, of Rome; O. S. Warner, of N. Y.; Theo. A. Mills, of Washington; C. S. Ostner, of California; E. S. Pickett, and J. Wilson McDonald, of N. Y. and Fisk Mills, sculptor of this city who in addition to a minature bronze statue representing the Admiral at his post on the starboard side of the ship near the mainmast, (which is the point designated by the instruction of a portion of the blainpin rail with rigging ropes attached,) submits as an evidence of the accuracy with which he delineates the forms, and features of men an admirable statutte of the late Hon. Thaddeus Stevens, and the figure model for a statue of the late Gideon Wilms, with which he competed for the den which was erroniously awarded to Mr. Bailey a short time since. The three models are attracting much attention, and are universally admired. The form and feature of the great commoner are familiar to everybody, and warms the soul of the spectatar. The Farrigut model summitted by Mr Fisk Mills is not only natural, and sailor-like in attitude, but like his other works is purely American, both in conception and execution, and pictures a real life scene.

The 11th, competitor is Vinnie Ream of course, and she has again got into the Capitol to practice her art. "Her seven foot" statue having rolled out of the cart, and broken its legs on its way to the Capitol, permission is of course granted her to turn a portion of the vestibule into a studio where she is now busily engaged in plastering her smiles about the broken limbs, and little scars on Farragut's heaving shirt, or coat sleeves. Of course this display of herself is just the thing that pleases her, but the spectacle is too ridiculous to be graphicaly pictured to your readers, and I regret that her pretentions come at all within my notice.

Variety is the result of many brains, and here we have Farragut on one toe, Farragut on two toes, and Farragut on no toes at all. Vinnie Ream has got him on one toe, Mills on two toes, and McDonald on no toes. The latter having lashed him to the mast in the most ridiculous attitude imaginable, while Vinnie has cocked up his left leg on what she styles a leading block, and forces him to hold up a heavy four-feet long telescope, and at the same time squeeze his fallen cap under his right arm while the exposure of his crown, gives him a monkyish appearance. To-day the Committee examined her statue and called upon her, as they did the masculine competiors, to explain her figure. Miss Vinnie was overcome and vented her feelings in ears and, of course, the Committee being new sympathize with her, and some of them with bowed heads shed tears also.

Randolph Rodgers has submitted quite a spirited and well executed sketch, but is in form, features and conception anything but Farragut. It is a splendid conception for a figure to represent a fire man, and with his trumpet in hand would be taken for such were it not for the intrusion of the navy cap, and the fact that he is lashed to a stake, like a christian martyr.

Seven o'clock, yesterday, having been appointed by the Committee of Public Buildings and Grounds for the inspection of the models, the Capitol police having cleared the vestibule, the artists presented themselves and were admitted seperately, each to explain his model, at the conclusion of which ceremony the police with draw and the crowd in waiting pressed in. It is thought that the Committee will reflect some days before selecting a model.

Dr. Horatio Stone, although having prepared a model for a statute of Farragut eight feet in hight at the Navy Yard, has not deposited it in the Capitol with the rest for public inspection.

The repeal of all usury laws is now being vigorously pressed in different quarters. It is argued that money, like any other commodity, should be left for regulation to the mutual convenience and necessities of the borrower and lender. This, however, is an assumption not verified by any experience as yet. Money in some respects only a commodity, but its specific character is that of a measure of all other commodities. Whether the elements which should determine this question, grew out of the former or latter character, has, as yet, been determined by no specific facts. Much idle speculation and debate has been wasted on the question which now moves up for practical settlement.

There is a movement on foot to erect and open here by the middle of next October, the most magnificent opera house south of New York.

A new eight-paged paper, "The Society Journal," has just been started in this city. Judging from its name, we will predict for it, in its peculiar province, a wide and successful sphere. A good society paper is just what is needed at the Nation's Capital.

The impetus given to commerce by that great international improvement (the Suez Canal) is enormous, especially in the India and China trade. Steamers now reach Calcutta from London in 30 days and expend 10 per cent less coal than formerly. The multiplication of propellers which alone are available for the Suez Canal has rendered the transit to the great marts of Europe and America as onishingly rapid. A voyage now lasts but three-fourths of the time formerly required, which amounts to a saving of 45 per cent in the stocks of goods in the mere ocean transit. The multiplication of railroads has also expedited the marking of goods, effecting another wonderful saving of cost.

LIFE.

From Raleigh.

In the Senate quite a discussion on the bill to amend the Constitution has taken place Among others Mr. Grandy took the floor and gave his views and position on this all important subject. He said he had been reported as opposed in vote to the amendments, but he was incorrectly reported, he thought at this time it would be best not to interfere with the Constitution. He thought some amendments were necessary however, and the Constitution provided how they should be made. It requires a bill to be passed by three-fifths of the whole number of members of each House of the General Assembly and published six months previous to a new election of members of the General Assembly, after such publication, the alteration proposed by the preceding General Assembly shall be agreed to in the first session thereafter by two-thirds of the whole number of members in each House of the General Assembly, then the amendments may be submitted to the qualified voters of the State. The proposition here was not to submit to the people the bill passed at last session, but to submit sixteen bills. What right had we to do so? He was willing that one or two amendments should be incorporated into the Constitution if it were done so in accordance with law. This had been his course before his constituents and he adhered to the same. Bills to change the Constitution have passed as follows Those striking out the clause in regard to the State debt, abolishing the office of Superintendent of Public Works, and striking out the provision providing for the Code Commission. The fourth Amendment was also adopted, allowing tax exemptions to the amount of three hundred dollars in any species of property that may be designated by the owner thereof.

In the House the bill authorizing Commissioners of Pasquotank county to submit the question of levying a special tax to raise $25,000 to build a Court House, issue bonds in their discretion, to the people of that county, passed; The bill to allow Commissioners of Currituck county to levy special tax, passed; The resolution relative to the contested seat from Martin county, giving the Committee power to send for persons and papers, was adopted. A resolution to impeach Robert B. Henry, Solicitor of the 12th Judicial District, of certain misdemeanors in office was passed, and the chair announced Messrs. Bennett, McGehee, Badger, Craige and Bowman as the Committee to prefer articles of impeachment.

From Washington.

In the Senate a resolution was offered for a Constitutional Amendment providing for the election of United States Senators by the people. Memorials against the repeal of the Bankrupt law were presented. The bill for the resumption of specie payment was fully discussed. A bill relieving the political disabilities of Wm. A. Graham of N. C., was passed. Several Appropriation Bills were passed.

In the House a resolution was offered directing the President to open communication with foreign Governments with a view to enforcing justice between Spain and Cuba. A Conference Committee was appointed on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the repeal of the Bankrupt law. A bill was passed restoring to the pension rolls the names of Southerners stricken therefrom for sympathy with the rebellion. A bill was passed permitting growers of tobacco to sell at retail one hundred dollars worth of tobacco, and extending the same privilege to the producers of wine. A bill relieving the political disabilities of R. M. T. Hunter of Va., was passed.

Hon. Clinton L. Cobb.

The able Representative of the First District is a man reserved but patriotic, unassuming but zealous in the interests of not only the people of the First District, but of the whole people of North Carolina.—A representative man, born of the people, by the people, and for the people of every race, color and condition; ever watchful for the welfare of all, looking beyond self and self-aggrandizement, he seeks to build up the waste places and restore North Carolina to the proud position she rightfully holds in the sisterhood of States composing the American Union. Following the foot steps of a Gaston, he says to all, "Look not mournfully into the past, it cometh not back again; wisely improve the future, as is thine; go forth into the shadowy future without fear and with a manly heart.—Ex.

A Tribute to Speaker Blaine.

Though Mr. Blaine is a New Englander, hailing from the breezy State of Main, he is a man of large views. He does not permit narrow sectional feeling to take complete possession of his heart and thus dwarf his influence. A short time after the close of our civil war, Gen. Gustavus Smith, among other prominent Confederates, was summoned to Washington. Those who fought for the "lost cause" were not popular in the capital city just then, especially in the Congressional circles. In the dining-room of the hotel, Gen. Smith occupied a seat at a table with many others. During the progress of the meal one one of the gentlemen eyed the General very closely. Presently he remarked: "Pradon me, but are you not Gen. Smith?" "Yes, sir," "Allow me, then, to give you my hand. My name is Blaine. Years ago, when I was a young man and a professor in the college at Georgetown, Ky., I met you, and knew your people well. Scott county is a glorious place. I remember with pleasure the charming hospitality of her people. Everybody was very kind to me, and I can never forget the days I spent in Georgetown. In memory of the old days, I shall be pleased to do what I can for you." And the distinguished member from Main reached forth his hand and cordially clasped that of Gen. Smith. Half an hour afterwards a number of ladies inquired of Mr Blaine why he had been so cordial to the rebel. He smiled, and replied: "Gen. Smith is a gentleman, notwithstanding he fought on the losing side. His people were kind to me when I was in Kentucky, and I cannot forget that kindness. Beside I always did like Southern hospitality."—Turf, Field & Farm.

Senator Alcorn, of Mississippi, is now living with his third wife, and twenty-one children can proudly exclaim, "My father is a Senator from Mississippi."—Savannah Advertiser.

A couple of Hoosiers, one of whom was named Trooth, recently had a quarrel over the division of some corn. Trooth was crushed to the earth, but he rose again and vanquished his assailant, and the eternal ears (of corn) are his.

An Annapolis (Md.) correspondent, dated the 4th, says of the Wharton trial: "Our court-house has resumed its wonted stillness. Mrs. Wharton yet remains in our city. What the State will do in her case has not been signified. The power of removal remains with the State's Attorney; but the place where it can be ordered to be tried belongs to the Judge. The next term of our court begins the third Monday in Februry, but only civil and equity cases are then tried. The third Monday of April he court will open for the trial of criminal cases. If the regular order of things Mrs. Whorton's case would again come up."

There is a station on the Pittsburg, and Chicago railroad called Hanna, in honor of a deceased citizen of Fort Wayne. A train stopped there the other day, and the brakeman, after the manner of his class, thrust his head in at the door and loudly called out, "Hanna." A young lady, endowed with the poetic appellation of Hanna, supposing he was addressing her, and shocked at his familiarity on so short an acquaintance, frowned like a thunder-cloud, and retorted: "You shut your mouth!"

THIS WEEK'S ADVERTISEMENTS.

We call attention to the following new advertisements in this issue.

Bank up Notice.
Court Notice.

Local and Personal.

☞Senator GRANDY came home on a flying visit on Saturday. He left again this morning.

☞C. H. ROBINSON has sold his large Saw Mill at this place to D. G. BUSH Esq., of Bellefonte, Pa.

☞Commissioner ZEIGLER has made a much needed improvement on Sheppard Street. The pedestrian public thank him for it.

☞A word to the wise, or to whom it may concern: Some people act as if their newspaper debts were like coffee, and would settle themselves in time by long standing.

☞Col. D. McD. LINDSE has been removed from the Assistant Assessorship of this end of the District and Col. CHARLES GUIRKIN of this City has been appointed to succeed him.

☞A cotemporary says that a cut lemon, kept on the wash-stand, and rusbed over the hands daily, after washing, and not wiped off for some minutes, is an excellent remedy for chapped hands.

☞Early gardening has been going on. In the language of SHAKESPEAR improved

"The clink of mattocks
Throwing broken ground about
Give pleasant notice of preperation."

☞The Raleigh Era say that the county of Tyrrell is the most law abiding in the State. There is no one in the county jail, and have been only four prisoners since the war. Court never holds more than two days.

☞We learn that Mrs. SARAH ELIZABETH, wife of of W. B. RIED of Goldsboro, died on the 30th of January. She was a native of this county, and was in her 34th year of age. She died of Consumption.

☞Among the Northern arrivals since our last we notice ELI G. DEAN, from Lodi, N. Y.; JOHN LANG from Watkins N. Y.; M. T. BRODRICK from Havanna, N. Y.; D. G. BUSH Esq., from Bellefonte Pa.; and FRED PAXSON from Philadelphia, Pa.

☞Senator GRANDY made an able and telling speech against the Constitutional Amendment programme introduced in the Senate. He took the true ground, that our people desire peace and quiet and are opposed to meddling with the Constitution at this time. A short synopsis will be seen in our Legislative report.

☞Several gentlemen from Pennsylvania—men of large capital and business experience—are identifying themselves with important interests preparatory to engaging heavily in extensive operations here. We know the parties and know them to be able and reliable men. The prospects for our town and section were never brighter than now.

☞The office of the District Clerk of the United States Court has been removed from Edenton to Elizabeth City. SAMUEL T. BOND Esq., who has been Clerk for a number of years having resigned our townsman M. B. CULPEPPER, has been appointed by his honor Judge BROOKS, to succeed him. The new appointee will make an obliging and efficient officer.

☞A friend on remitting his subscription says: The CAROLINIAN is a success because its editor attends to his business and makes it a live local paper." While thanking our friend for his compliment we would say that a large number of the papers in the State wonld be successful if the editors devoted more attention to local interests and home news. A local paper neglecting these cannot expect to succeed.

☞The stranger who visits our city and, in passing up and down our streets, beholds the improvements and the new houses and stores going up, can scarcely realize that four years ago it was a village of ruins. Then, on every hand dilapidated buildings and bare walls—monuments of desolation and destruction—met the eye and despondency rested over the town. Now how changed! In place of the haggard walls so long an eyesore to all who passed the corner of Main and Road Streets, now stands one of the most magnificent Hotels in the South; everywhere evidences of progress are visible and everybody is busy. "The better time" we so long labored for in these colums has slowly but surely come. It is but the begining.

☞Strangers from the North who come to Elizabeth City are always pleased, especially if they stop long enough to make much acquaintance with our courteous, liberal and hospitable people. They are always impressed, too, with the unrivaled advantages for business of various kinds that are seen so conspicuously on every side. And then our climate—warm and pleasant in Winter and tempered by refreshing breezes in the Summer—delights them beyond expression. They see that we have great advantages—advantages far superior to most other places, and that all we need is enterprize and capital. With these judiciously invested and wisely directed Elizabeth City must soon become one of the most important points in the South.

☞A Western Editor thus consoles himself about the cold weather: "If the musquitoes are not frozen to death this winter, 'can there be any balm in Gilead?'"

☞Our Devil has tried his hand at Poetry. Here is his first attempt.

Our business men quite prosperous are,
And in the world right up do rise;
The secret is—they take our paper
And through its columns advertise!

☞The working force of the CAROLINIAN office speak from experience when theysay that ROBINSON, the Proprietor of the popular Eating Saloon on Water St., gets up the best oyster supper in the city. They advise everybody to go and patronize him."

☞The Committee selected to examine applicants for the West Point Military Academy met, as announced, on Friday last. There were several applicants. The recommendation was given to a young man from Hertford county, named A. C. MOORE. The Committee consisted of Hon. GEO. W. BROOKS, JAMES H. SHAW Esq., and Rev. W. W. KENNEDY.

☞The following is the matrimonial record as furnished us by JOHN T. PRICE Esq., Register for Pasquotank county since the 1st day of last September:

The Savannah Republican rejoices in the prospect of Alexander H. Stephens' election to Congress, because "the veteran war-horse will not be sent back into a solitude which was repulsive, and might prove fatal to him, but will go again to the force-front of the battle. which he snuffs afar off, and longs again to plunge into."

DEATHS.

BLACK—At this place on the 6th, inst. GEO. COBB, son of James Black, aged about 2 years 6 months.

OUR BODILY INFIRMITIES.—Physical infirmities are the lot of all. Millions are always sick. No man, woman or child is uniformly in perfect health. Much, however, of the sickness and suffering which render life a burden to so many of our fellow beings is due to carelessness and neglect. A mighty antidote to the leading causes of disease has been provided. It is as harmless as it is efficient. No poisonous drug enters into its composition. It is an undefiled stimulant, tonic and aperient, of which every ingredient is vegetable. This unexceptionable preventive and restorative medicine is not "a new thing under the sun." HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS will soon have been before the world a quarter of a century; and it is not too much to aver that thousands, aye, tens of thousands, are now using it who would have been in their graves years ago had they not been strengthened and sustained by this wholesome stimulant. The rapidity with which minor ailments often become when neglected, obstinate diseases, is well known. This tonic is famous for the immediate check which it puts upon the progress of deadly disorders. The sensation of languor, the sick headache, the nervous ness, the indisposition to exertion, the cankers, the confession of tongue, the physical debility, which are intended to premonish us of the approach of serious danger, are invariably removed by a few doses of the Bitters. The fame of the preparation as a genuine specific for dyspepsia, bilious complaints, malarious fevers, rheumatism and chronic debility, is as wide as the world; and in these days of infamous charlatanism, when fierce cathartics, that rob the invalid of the last remnants of his strength, are advertised as invigorants (?), it is intelligent to mankind that HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are everywhere procurable, and everywhere popular.

Beware of Counterfeits!

JOB MOSES' SIR JAMES CLARKE'S FEMALE PILLS

are extensively COUNTERFEITED. Dishonest Druggists endeavor to sell the counterfeits to make greater profits. The genuine have the name of Job Moses on each package. All others are worthless imitations.

The GENUINE Pills are unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. They moderate all excesses and remove all obstructions, from whatever cause.

TO MARRIED LADIES

they are particularly suited. They will in a short time bring on the monthly period with regularity; and although very powerful, contain nothing hurtful to the constitution. In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affections, Pains in the Back and Limbs, Fatigue on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics and Whites, they will effect a cure when all other means have failed. The circulars around each package give full directions and advice, or will be sent free to all writing for them, sealed from observation.

N. B.—In all cases where the GENUINE cannot be obtained, One Dollar enclosed to the Sole Proprietor, JOB MOSES, 18 Cortlandt St., New York, will insure a bottle of the genuine, containing Fifty Pills, by return mail, securely sealed from any knowledge of its contents.

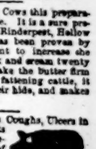
CELEBRATED

Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a rare preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.



To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hides, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be readily and entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

Woman on the Farm.

"Katie Hunnibee," the wife of the late J. B. Lyman, then agricultural editor of the New York Tribune, once said at a farmer's meeting:

"A garden, Mr. Chairman, was a woman's earliest home, and horticulture her first employment. Has she since found exercise more congenial, or labor more agreeable, than

'—to tend plant, herb and flowers,
To lop, or prune, or prop, or bind?

Perhaps in no department of human industry can the woman so aid and supplement the man as in that of agriculture. For its lighter tasks her strength suffices, and her quick eye and intuitive judgment aids his slow processes of reasoning and logic. There is scarcely another branch of labor which brings the husband and wife in more constant association than farming, thus making the word home to them both. While by his labor the garner is filled, by her's the golden wheat is changed into savory loaf. He tends and shears the sheep. 'She layeth her hand on the spindle and all her household are clothed in scarlet.' He looks upon his herds, his fattening flocks, his fertile fields, reclaimed and beautiful by his own hands, while she surveys, with housely pride, her stores of butter and amber honey, her translucent jellies and preserves, her closets filled with savory sausage meat, snowy lard, wisely compounded mincemeat, all the result of united family thrift and industry. As they sow, so shall they reap. In communion with nature, harnessed to the car of the seasons, sowing seed in the spring time, nurturing the young plants in summer heats, and borrowing brightness and wealth from all this to make rich and cheery the day of frost and snow, man and woman develop their noblest qualities, and prepare themselves and their children for exercising the largest influence for good.

"If we wish to find normal womanhood, unwarped by conventionalities, untainted by social vices, not weakened by excess of luxury, we shall find it in our farm houses far of tener than on Broadway or Chestnut street. Breathing the eternal calm of the mountain, the prairie, the woodland, removed from the vitiating atmosphere of fashioned and city dissipation, woman may look upon Truth face to face, and enjoy the clear vision of her unvalid loveliness.

"Let her, then, delight in flowers and vines, in bees and birds; let her study their nature and requirements; let her rejoice in seeing them bloom and increasing around her. So will she be freed from the tyrany of Fashion, the sway of artificial life, and breathe the high and pure atmosphere in which the pulse of Nature keeps time and tune with the great heart of the Creator."

Good Points of a Cow.

Observation and experience have tanght some rules to be observed in the choice of good milkers, which, though not infallible, are by no means to be despised.

The characteristics of a good milker, are:

1. Youth. A cow that is in her prime at from four to six years, and the best paying time to buy is just after the birth of her second or third calf.

2. Prominence and Fulness of Milk Veins, and velvety softness of skin. The milk veins run down on either side of the animal towards the udder, and are easily perceptible to the eye, or can be readily pound by presure of the hand, if the animal is not over fat. The skin should be soft and mellow, not hard, rough, and "staring."

3. Symmetry, Fullness, and Softness of the Udder. It should be broad, well spread out, projecting behind the legs, and also reaching forward under the belly. There should be a softness and thinness to the touch, and an absence of fleshiness and thickness.

4. Perfect Number and Condition of Teats. If one teat is wanting, about a fourth less milk will be the result. A cow's udder is not, as some suppose, a barrel with four taps, but is divided into four different compartments, called "milk glands," each of which has it own tap or teat. It is not only important that the full number of teats be present in the working order, but it is desirable that they be well placed, not crowded together, but pretty far and uniformly apart; rather long and tapering; all pointing out and downward; equal in size and even appearance.

5. Docility and Quietness of Disposition. These are indicated by large, mild and clear eyes, and an air of contentment generally. A cow that is quiet and contented feeds at ease, chews her cud with entire satisfaction, and will secrete and yield more milk than any restless and turbulent animal, having similar milking characteristics in other respects.—Mass. Ploughman.

Green Food For Fowls.

Mr, L. Wright, in his new serial work on Poultry, has these observations on green food, which are of great importance to all who attempt to breed fowls in confined quarters:

"The last requisit in the shape of diet in a regular supply of green food. Here, again, kept on grass will need no attention; but for birds penned up, the daily provision of it is an absolute necessity, though most beginners are ignorant of it. We well remember, in our own early experiances, how our fowls died, we could not, at first, tell why; and one fine Buff Cochin cock, whose only fault was a strong vulture-hock, was, in particular, greatly regretted. An experienced friend let us into the sacret, and after that we had no difficulty in keeping fowls, even where it is often said they cannot be kept in health, viz.: in a yard paved with large flag stones, The best substitute for natural grass is a large fresh turft thrown in daily to each four or five hens; and even in towns it is often possible to procure this, by giving children a few pence every week to keep up a regular supply. Where turft is not allowed to be taken, grass may be cut or pulled, but in this case must be cut into green chaff with shears or, a chaff machine. The latter plan is how we actually managed for years in a yard only sixty-seaven by thirty-five feet, divided into six pens; paying some child a few pence to bring fresh cut grass daily, cutting it up and mixing it with their soft meat."

A Simple Deoderizer.

One pound of green coperas, eosting seven cents, dissolved in one quart of water, and pour down a water closet, will effectually concentrate and destroy the fowlest smells. On board ships and steamboats, about hotels and public places, there is nothing so nice to purify the air. Simple green copperas dissolved under the bed in anything that will hold water, will render a hospital or other place for the sick free from nnpleasant smells. For butcher's stalls, fish markets, slaughter houses, sinks, and wherever there are offensive, putrid gasses, dissolve copperas and sprinkle it about, and in a few days the smell will pass awry.

A railroad will soon be built to Weldon, putting this place in direct communication by Rail, with the whole United States. Fronting and looking over, as it does, two large sheets of navigable water, where steamers and sailing vessels are constantly passing, carrying freight and passengers to all parts of the country, its location and surroundings, are of the most fascinating and desirable character. There is a fishery on it ready for working a seine 2,500 yards long, and which commands a portion of both streams of water, and can be made immensely profitable. The price charged is low, and the purchase a very desirable one. The buildings consist of a good two-story dwelling and out-houses.

A desirable house and lot in the town of Elizabeth City on the corner of two principal streets, the principal one, and situated in the best business locality in the town. The lot contains about two acres of land, and the buildings consist of a fair dwelling three stories high, containing eight rooms, all in good order, another two story building with four rooms and pantries, dairy, smokehouses, stables, &c. The dwelling has a good cellar under it. There is room on the front lot to erect two good stores, and they would occupy the best stand in the town for merchandize.

A Serial Story By DR. HOLLAND.
New Story by SAXE HOLM
A Long Story From BRET HARTE.
BRILLIAFT ARRAY of CONTRIBUTORS.
CLARENCE COOK On Furniture, And Decoration.
R. H. STODDARD On Authors.

EXTRAORDINARY INDUCEMENTS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS;

500 Pages for $1.00! &c., &c.

The Publishers of Scribner's Monthly, in their Prospectus just issued, promised for the ensuing year a more brilliant array of contributors, and an increase in the variety and beauty of its illustrations, already conceded by the critics to be "finer than any which have hitherto appear in any American magazine."

Dr. HOLLAND, the Editor, will write the serial story of the year, which will be autobiographical in form, and will be illustrated by Miss Hallock. It is entitled ARTHUR BONICASTLE, and will deal with some of the most difficult problems of American Life. It will be commenced in the November Number.

There will be a new story by SAXE HOLM, THE ONE LEGGED DANCERS.

BRET HARTE, the best writer of short stories now living, will contribute a characteristic intitled THE EPIC OF FIDDLETOWN, which will be illustrated by Sheppard.

R. H. STODDARD will write a series of entertaining papers about AUTHORS, THEIR PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS, HOME LIFE, FAMILIES, FRIENDS, WHIMS, AND WAYS. A series of PORTRAITS OF LIVING AMERICAN WRITERS, is also promised.

Clarance Cook will write about FURNITTRE, AND THE DECORATION OF AMERICAN HOMES. These papers will be eminently practical as well as artistic, and will be illustrated with designs and sketches by nun erous artists in addition to those which the writer himself will furnish.

Among those who will contribute are: Hans Andersen, Bryant, Bushell, Eggleston, Froude, Higginson, Bishop Huntington Bret Hart, John Hay, H. H. McDonald, Mitchell, Miss Phelps, Stedman, Stockton, Stoddard, Cella Thaxter, Warner, Wilkinson, Mrs. Whitney, besides a host of others.

The editorial control and direction of the Magazine will remain in the hands of Dr. Holland, who will continue to write "THE TOPPICS OF THE TIME," which the N. Y. Independent says, "are more widely quoted than any similar papers in any American magazine."

Watson Gilder will write "THE OLD CABINET," as hitherto. Prof. John C. Draper conducts the Department of "NATURE AND SCIENCE." The department of "HOME AND SOCIEMY" and "CULTURE AND PROGRESS," will engage the contributions of more than a score of pens on both sides of the Atlantic. The Watchman and Reflectors says. "Scribner's Monthly for September is better than usual, which indicates a needless waste of editoual brdins and Publisher's money, for the Magazine was good enough before!" And yet the
